PAINT + NATURE is exactly that — natural elements found in photographs with hand-painted embellishments to make them look other-worldly.

Lichen drenched in cobalt blue pigment.

The sun, piercing the haze, seen through a screen of contorted, hand-painted gold mesh.

A wood-cut, repeated into a graphic pattern with a wide, languid ribbon of paint running over the top.

Marble, stone, twigs combined with brush-strokes and the kaleidoscope vision of insects or precision-cut ovals, scumbled with paint and overlaying a muted lichen — all make this collection look like an artist’s installation in the middle of an ancient forest.

As a matter of fact, artist Nils Udo, a Land Art pioneer, was the foundation for the inspiration.

It’s hard to improve upon nature, but it is exciting to combine simple images into fantastical pairings, to be seen through new eyes.
